Puppy's First Week

META DESCRIPTION

It's time to finally bring home your brand new shih tzu for the puppy's first week. Here are some easy to use tips for new dog parents or seasoned owners

HEADLINE

Puppy's first week is finally here!

SUBHEADLINE

It's finally time to bring home your new shih tzu

Pre Puppy Prep:

Establishing a working relationship with the breeder ahead of time is a good first step to getting your Shih-tzu puppy. Then when you visit the puppies, see the puppy's parents and ask important questions before you give your downpayment like; were the puppies dewormed and vaccinated? Have the puppies started crate or potty training?

At Laliques we make sure all these things are taken care of before we even list the puppies as available, choosing responsible pet owners who ensure the quality of the breed just as strongly as we do.

Bring Home Your Puppy

Just as you prepare newborn's room, you need to prep the house for the new puppy to designate areas for the puppy to eat, sleep, and establish healthy boundaries that align with your lifestyle: for instance furniture boundaries since toy breeds aren't allowed to jump up or down from furniture for safety reasons, plus creating a potty, training, and exercise plans. It's important to also lean on your breeder for food recommendations or questions about registering your puppy with the AKC.

The feeling of bringing home a puppy is overwhelming. While exciting for the kids, it can cause worry for how the puppy will adapt to its new home; the best thing about our puppies is our pre-puppy prep to start crate training in order to help puppies transition well to families.

The First Night

It's key to make the puppy feel loved and wanted in those first interactions also developing safe boundaries that offer both comfort to the puppy and smoothness to the transition. Keeping the puppy close to you is the best way to show the puppy the warmth it craves and is used to from the warm bodies of it's brothers and sisters.

But, that doesn't necessarily mean you need to cuddle with the puppy nonstop but rather create a safe space where the puppy can see you. Giving the puppy its own area near you and around the busiest spots in your house can be a tangible way to make it feel safe. You can start by getting the puppy used to being in its crate, keeping it close to you at night, and by throwing treats in occasionally in the day with the door open to establish a routine of potty and play...(Check our more resources for Surviving the first night)

About The Breed

META DESCRIPTION

There's a good chance if you're here that shih tzus are the right puppies for you, but it doesn't hurt to get more about the breed

Headline (H2)

Puppies are the family members you choose, so it's best to pick the right one just for you and your unique situation.

BODY COPY IN BREAK OUT SECTIONS OR SHORT PARAGRAPHS

Each of our litters have championship lineage personalities and qualities, assured by our appraisals. And, along with our concern for the breed standard is our need to place puppies in the right home.

Perfect Family Dog

Their playful, friendly temperament makes Shih-tzus great for families in houses or apartments, as long as puppies are walked occasionally. And, with the right incentive, our puppies are not hard to train because of their high intelligence and need to please their owners. They'll make alert watch dogs because they are attentive and often bold characteristics, but they won't be doing any fighting coming in at 9-16 pounds and growing no more than 11 inches high, part of the "toy" breed category.

Celebrities Of The Canine World

Shih Tzus have been popular among celebrities, but their height of fame began in 17th century tibet as a favorite of Chinese royalty.

Grooming

Shih Tzus need to be groomed at least every two to three months along with brushing a couple times a week to keep their coat untangled and show quality. And one of the best things about their unique mane is its hypoallergenic quality, so those with allergies can enjoy this easily adaptable breed.
